HINGEONG, JANUARY 16TH, 1886. THE need of a revised edition of the Ordin. ances of Hongkong has long been recognised, and the step taken by Mr. MABSH during his former administration in appointing a Commission for the purpose of preparing and reporting upon drafts for such an edition was a truly politic one. After having been in existence for several years the Commission is now beginning to present its work. At the meeting of the Legislative Council on Wednesday the Attorney-General explained the principles upon which the Commission has proceeded. The instructions were to prepare and report upon drafts for a revised edition of the Ordinances, and for amendments of the same, incorporating the results of such recent Imperial legislation as appears applicable to the circumstances of the colony. The Attorney General says:-- 'In to contine themselves very closely to the lines laid down in the Commission. Here we join issue with the learned Attorney and the Commission. Their instructions were not only to prepare drafts but to report upon them. They have prepared a number of drafts, but they have duced beyond that of the complainant, given not a vestige of a report upon them. The Attorney-General says that "at the proper time we shall probably recommend some amendment." Whether the pronoun-we refers to the Government or the Commission does not appear, but in either case there can be no doubt that with reference to the drafts then for a whole week, and to detain the acalready presented to the Council the proper time for stating what amendments it is intended to propose in the existing law has already passed. The procedure with reference to Bills in all legislative assemblies under the being heard in the court. The Inspector British Constitution is well understood. By Rules of H.B.M. The inconvenience attending this deviation from wise be brought to justice. & Walsh, Shanghail the regular course will be readily apparent to any one familiar with the forms of legislative bodies. But by the course proposed by the Attorney-General the the antograph aignature of members of the Legislative Council will be deprived of all the advantages of discussion and debate until they are called upon to consider the proposed measure in detail and their vote on the second reading is deprived of all value, because they are in total ignorance of what the intentions of the posed of Senhores Marques d'Oliveira and Government are as to the final nature of the Act. Such a course is obviously not conducive to good legislation; the Council are, in effect, invited to take a series of leaps in comparative darkness when there is no earthly reason why they should not have the fullest light. With each draft presented by the Law Revision Committee embodying all the existing legislation on the subject of which the Bill treats there ought-to be a full report stating what portions of the existinglaw they recommend should be retained, what portions eliminated, and what amendments Sir Bruce Burnside has accepted the post of introduced, together with a statement of the reasons on which the recommendations are Otherwise our law revision is likely

The ground stated by his consisting of songs and ballads, and the latter the contrary, the Russian agents seek to allay Worship for his action was that the constable had brought a frivolous case. Had his Worship adopted the ground of improper motives it would have been easier to under-[172] stand the position taken-up, but the ground stated seems to us somewhat incomprehen. sible. A frivolous charge one would usually understand to mean the act of charging some person with an offence of a frivolous nature, such as a petty case of assault, but to charge a man with going into your house and stealing your coat is not a frivolous sort of charge to make against anyone. It may be brought upon totally inadequate and frivolous grounds, but that is entirely another matter. Supposing, however, this to be what his Worship means by the term used, the decision is still, in our opinion, hardly consistent with the facts of the case. A great many cases are brought before the court necessarily only upon- suspicion, even where the gravest charges are involved; for instance, the recent stabbing case in Queen's road, where three men were in custody at one time on a charge of committing an offence it was perfectly certain only one man could be guilty of In this case, according to the evidence, there as her dress, in one of her hands when she was certainly some ground for suspicion. A coat was missed from the complainant's residence directly after the prisoner had been seen near the door. The prisoner was in the babit of going there to get water, and clothing had been missed before. No one picked up shots of the Corps by P. C. Sutherland was seen near the premises anywhere about the time the coat was missed but gulation marking, and, as will be seen from the the prisoner. Under these circumstances there was undoubtedly ground for suspicion against the man, and though there was scarce. | tion last week. Sutherland's side won a close conly perhaps ground for a conviction it seems test by sleven points. rather unfair that the constable who brought the charge should not only lose his coat. but have to pay 50 cents to the man be believed to have stolen it. It is true that if the prisoner was innocent it was a hardship that he should be detained in custody for eleven days over the case, but that was not the fault of the complainant. It is entirely the concern of the magistrate that the case was remanded time after time as it was, although no material evidence was adand it seems hardly consistent that his Worship should find a case to be so frivolous as to render it desirable to punish the complainant for bringing it when he had at tacked enough importance to the charge to remand the case, first for a day or two, and cused man in gaol all the time. Again, there is this fact to be taken into consideration. Every case a constable brings up goes before a preliminary sort of tribunal before -"I.tell them my Father's a Marquis"-in on duty makes an inquiry into the case, and if he thinks it too frivolous or too ill-founded to send before the Police Court, he dismisses it summarily. The Inspector on duty ther investigation, and be let it go on for sang "The British Lion" in capital style, but equally to blame with the constable who was been the best course to pursue, and that his course for himself, has placed a strained interpretation on the law, and applied it in a way it was never intended to be used. M. Prosper Giquel, whose name at one time was heard far more frequently than at present in connection with Chinese matters, has written to one of the Paris papers a letter of protest against the contemplated evacuation of Tonquin. M. Giquel thinks that the colonisation of that country by France would be calculated to cement the relations of the latter with China. We do not altogether agree with this view; but it is scarcely likely, after the British successes in Burmah, that the French will be content to forego the possible advantages to gain which the mere occupation of the lower delta, which is all that can be successfully achieved at the present time apparently.

The ruffishs of Tacoma, Washington territory, considering that the President was wrong in sending troops on account of their behaviour in mittee of twenty-one "men of property" to investigate matters and vindicate them. "In obliging the Chinese to go, they carried out the wishes of ninetenths of the inhabitants of Tacoma." If so, the fact goes to show how widespread is the hatred of the Chinese in the western part of this country. As to violence the mob used all necessary for their purpose. The report admits deliberamild-mannered ruffians pleading the "immorality" of the Chinese, but the Chinese are hated not because they are immoral, but because they are industrious and frugal. As to the Chinese injuring other labourers by competition, the Committee of Congress that went to California in 1876 to investigate the Chinese question placed it beyond doubt that where the Chinese had displaced one white labourer they had opened the way to the employment of two. The Superintondent of Construction on the Pacific Railway testified that he could never get more than 700 or 800 white men to work until he employed Chinese, when white men offered their services by thousands, and 2,500 of them were engaged The Chinese in most of their work on the Pacific coast receive lower wages than the whites, because employers will not pay them more. They are aseless as teamsters, not having been accustomed to handle animals in China. Anyway, a generation will end the Chinese question to the United States if they are meanwhile kept out. There is no fear of the descent on these shores ol "incalculable hordes," which Mr. Blaine (late candidate for the Presidency) pretended to fear, in order to angle for the vote of the hoodlums. Notwithstanding the campaign which has been conducted against Haiphong for the last year we are persuaded that we will remain here. You see that the Hou-gas project is already abandoned, and that of Quang-yen will have a similar ending ; a hundred millions (of francs) would be necessary to set up a suitable establishment there, and one would have to be contented to render definite the provisional state which has lasted at Haiphong too long? We cannot therefore too strongly impress upon the Administration to at length decide on filling in where required and the making of streets, wharves, etc. It is useless to wait for the formation of a municipality before commencing these works, as the organisation of the municipality would occupy more than a year. Time prosses, and we are now at a suitable season of the year of which it is desirable to take advantage to proceed with the most urgent works; otherwise, if the administration does not accede to our request, we consider that it will incur a very heavy responsibility should an opidemic break out with the return of the hot weather. BEFORE MR. JUSTICE RUSSELL.

LEONG KUN V. YEONG HOR HAL EJECTMENT The phintiff wished to eject the defendant and four others residing in the house on the ground that they were lepers. He said he had been to the Registrar General's Department, and from there he had been referred to the court. His Lordship said he could not interfere in the matter. The plaintiff must get a medical certificate, and then if the defendants refused to leave at the end of a month he could get an ejectment warrant.

THOMAS MARSHALL V. YEUNG ASKING,

The plaintiff is at present residing at the Temperance Hall, and he claimed the money for a pair of trousers spoiled by men in the defendant's employ. He was just stepping off the pavement into the road when the defendant's men ran a trolly loaded with cases of matches against him. and torsons leg of his trousers down from top to bottom with the axle of the wheels. The trousers, which had been but very little worn, cost him £1 3s. in England. The defendant's men alleged that the blame
